Interviews with Mirko Djordjevic Authors: Atej Tutta, Bojan Matjašević

Mirko Djordjevic is Sociologist of Religion and a publicist from Serbia. He is also an Christian who openly criticizes modern Serbian Orthodox church and it's connection with nationalism. In his lectures and discussions with the participants he presented the causes and nature of modern Balkan wars. These were not 'religious' wars, but a military conquest, initiated and led by political leaders and 'war' criminals. Religious stigmatization and segregation came-in later, as a necessary excuse for the crimes, and newly established ideology that would support the existing situation.
